

Start here

Open this first: Pedal to the Plate — music video.

It's yours, Hicham — "Pedal to the Plate" is now a full music video. Open the music video first, on your workbench; everything else sits beside it. Your front-man performs every line straight to camera — the night drive through wet neon streets, pulling into the lot, then the gym: plates loading, chalk flying, the bar on his back, and that final roar in the chalk smoke before the bar slams and he walks off. The lips lock to the track the whole way. The song on its own and the cover are right there too, same as before.

One thing to know before you post it anywhere public: the performer is a realistic person the studio designed, not someone real, so platforms will ask you to tick their "AI-generated content" label when you upload — a quick checkbox, nothing more.

If you want it tuned — more car and less gym, a different look for the performer, or a 30-second vertical cut built around the chorus for your phone — say the word and it's a quick one.

What is in the kit

1 Pedal to the Plate — full track

Audio • MP3 • `pedal-to-the-plate-master.mp3`

The song on its own — windows down in the car.

2 Pedal to the Plate — cover art

Image • PNG • `pedal-to-the-plate-cover.png`

The cover, for anywhere you want the track to have a face.

3 Pedal to the Plate — music video (open this first)

Film • MP4 • `pedal-to-the-plate-music-video-v2.mp4`

Your hype track as a full music video — the front-man performs every line, drive to gym, built to hit on a big screen. Open this first.